

Elevator Pitch

My name is Saint. I graduated University of California, Irvine with a bachelor's degree in Psychology and a minor in Statistics. I have 8 years of professional work experience and am currently undergoing a rigorous curriculum for data science. I have a variety of capstone projects under my belt, from analyses of housing prices in London to a breakdown of the ideal retirement age in the UFC. I am currently looking to work for a medium to large company as a junior data scientist. I work great in a team, and I would love to collaborate with a group of my peers to advance both the organization and my own data science skills.
